SUPPORTIVE LIFESTYLE GUIDE - NOT MEDICAL ADVICE

READ FIRST

A quick, important note

This guide is for general educational and lifestyle support only - it is NOT medical advice, diagnosis or treatment, and does not replace care from your doctor, pharmacist or registered dietitian.

GLP-1 medications should only be used under a licensed provider's supervision. Always follow their instructions, and talk to your provider or dietitian before changing your diet, protein intake, supplements or exercise - especially with any medical condition, pregnancy/breastfeeding, or side effects.

Nutrition values are approximate and vary by brand, portion and preparation. For severe or persistent symptoms (severe nausea/vomiting, dehydration, dizziness, abdominal pain), contact your provider promptly.

By using this guide you agree the author is not liable for how you apply the information.

Four things that make this work

1 - Protein first

Your appetite drops on GLP-1, so it's easy to eat too little and lose muscle with the fat. Put protein first at every meal and snack (many providers suggest ~20-30g per meal - ask yours). Easy wins: eggs, Greek yogurt, skyr, cottage cheese, chicken, turkey, fish, tofu, beans, whey.

2 - Smaller portions, eaten slowly

Serve smaller plates, eat slowly, stop at comfortable fullness. Frequent small meals are gentler than three big ones.

3 - Hydration

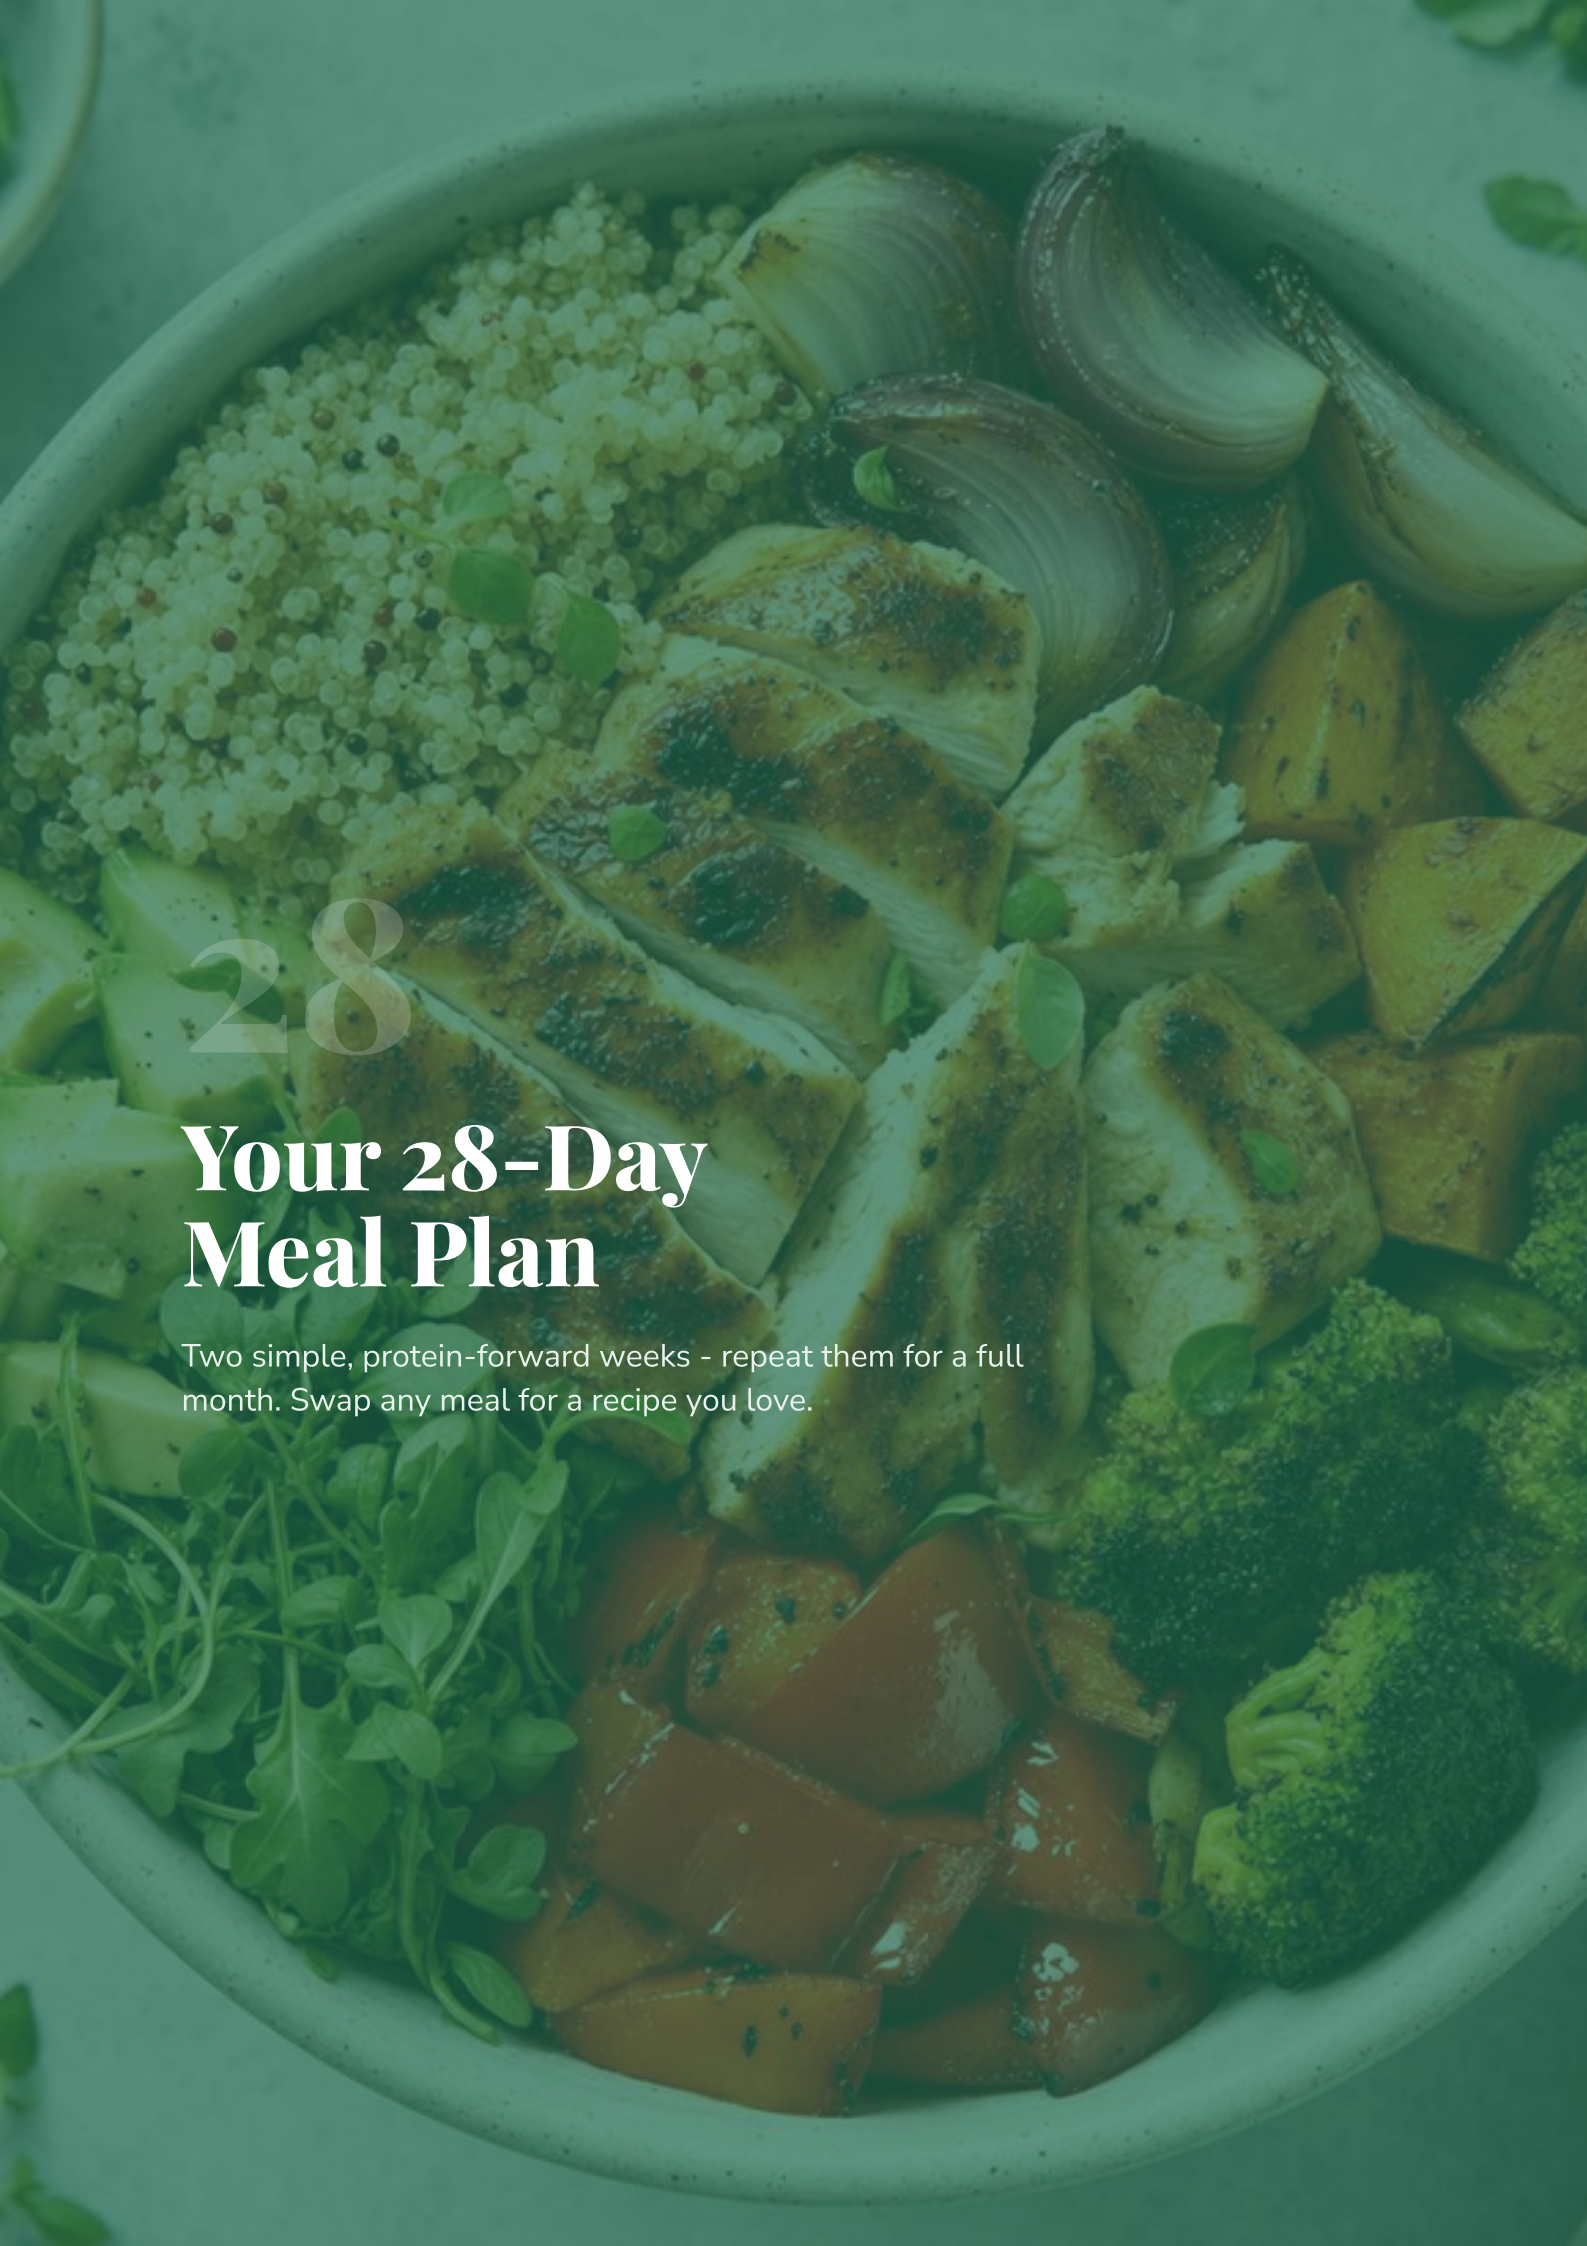

Sip water through the day; add electrolytes if active. Good hydration eases constipation and fatigue - two of the most common complaints.

4 - Keep your muscle

Pair protein with 2-3 short strength sessions a week plus daily walks. This protects muscle, energy and metabolism while you lose fat.

The simple plate

- 1/2 plate non-starchy veg
- 1/4 plate lean protein (eat this first)
- 1/4 plate smart carbs or extra protein
- a thumb of healthy fat

KEEP YOUR MUSCLE

Beginner strength routine

Do 2-3 times a week on non-consecutive days, plus daily walks. Start light, focus on form, breathe. Stop if you feel unwell and check with your provider first.

Full-body - 2 rounds

- Chair / box squats - 10-12
- Incline push-ups - 8-12
- Seated or band rows - 10-12
- Glute bridges - 12-15
- Calf raises - 15
- Dead-bug core - 8/side

Weekly habits

- Protein first at every meal
- 7,000-9,000 steps if able
- Sleep 7-9h for recovery
- Add resistance bands as you progress

FEEL BETTER

Managing common side effects

General comfort tips only - contact your provider for severe or persistent symptoms.

Nausea

- Small, frequent meals; avoid greasy food
- Ginger tea or plain crackers
- Eat slowly; stop before too full

Constipation

- More fibre, gradually
- More water; walk daily
- Ask about a fibre supplement

Fatigue & hydration

- Sip water all day; electrolytes if active
- Don't skip protein
- Small balanced snacks steady energy

Heartburn

- Smaller portions
- Don't lie down after eating
- Limit spicy/acidic/fatty triggers

GOOD TO KNOW

Frequently asked

How much protein should I aim for?

Many providers suggest ~20-30g per meal, or a daily target based on your body weight. Ask your provider or dietitian for your number.

I can barely finish a meal - help?

Eat protein first, use smaller plates, and top up with a shake or Greek yogurt if you fall short.

Do I need supplements?

Whole foods first; a simple whey shake helps hit targets. Check with your provider before adding anything.

Can I repeat the meal plan?

Yes - repeat the 2 weeks or mix your favourites. Consistency beats variety.

Is it vegetarian-friendly?

Many meals use tofu, eggs, dairy and beans. Swap meat for tofu, tempeh or extra beans.

Will I lose muscle?

Protein + 2-3 strength sessions a week is the proven way to protect muscle while losing fat.
