SUPPORTIVE LIFESTYLE GUIDE - NOT MEDICAL ADVICE

Please read first: important disclaimer

This guide is for general educational and lifestyle-support purposes only. It is NOT medical advice, diagnosis, or treatment, and it is not a substitute for care from your doctor, pharmacist, or registered dietitian.

GLP-1 medications (such as semaglutide/tirzepatide) should only be used under the supervision of a licensed healthcare provider. Always follow your provider's instructions. Talk to your provider or a registered dietitian before changing your diet, protein intake, supplements, or exercise - especially if you have any medical condition, are pregnant or breastfeeding, or experience side effects.

Nutrition values are approximate estimates and vary by brand, portion, and preparation. If you experience severe or persistent symptoms (severe nausea/vomiting, dehydration, dizziness, abdominal pain), contact your provider promptly.

By using this guide you agree the author is not liable for how you apply the information.

What's inside

- GLP-1 nutrition essentials - protein, portions, hydration, muscle
- Your 28-day high-protein meal plan (4 weeks)
- 16 quick photo recipes with ingredients, method & macros
- Weekly shopping lists (print & go)
- Beginner muscle-keeping workout

- Printable trackers (protein/water, weight, symptoms)

Tip: you don't have to be perfect. Aim for protein first at each meal, stay hydrated, move gently, and repeat. Small consistent steps beat all-or-nothing.

GLP-1 nutrition essentials

1. Protein first

Appetite drops on GLP-1, so it's easy to eat too little and lose muscle with the fat. Put protein first at every meal and snack. Many providers suggest roughly 20-30g protein per meal - ask yours for your target. Easy wins: eggs, Greek yogurt/skyr, cottage cheese, chicken, turkey, fish, tofu, beans, whey.

2. Smaller portions, eaten slowly

Serve smaller plates, eat slowly, and stop at comfortable fullness. Frequent small meals are gentler on the stomach than 3 large ones.

3. Hydration

Sip water through the day; add electrolytes if active or sweating. Good hydration eases constipation and fatigue - two of the most common complaints.

4. Keep your muscle

Pair protein with 2-3 short strength sessions per week (see the workout section) plus daily walking. This protects muscle, energy, and metabolism while you lose fat.

Simple plate guide

- 1/2 plate: non-starchy veg
- 1/4 plate: lean protein (aim to eat this first)
- 1/4 plate: smart carbs or extra protein
- Thumb of healthy fat

Keep your muscle: beginner strength routine

Do 2-3 times per week on non-consecutive days, plus daily walks. Start light, focus on form, breathe. Stop if you feel dizzy or unwell, and check with your provider before starting.

Full-body routine - 2 rounds

- Chair/box squats - 10-12
- Incline push-ups (wall or counter) - 8-12
- Seated or resistance-band rows - 10-12
- Glute bridges - 12-15
- Standing calf raises - 15
- Dead-bug core - 8 per side

Weekly habits that protect muscle

- Protein first at every meal
- 7,000-9,000 steps if able
- Sleep 7-9h for recovery
- Add resistance bands as you get stronger

Managing common side effects

General comfort tips only - contact your provider for severe or persistent symptoms.

Nausea

- Small, frequent meals; avoid greasy/fried food
- Try ginger tea or plain crackers
- Eat slowly; stop before overly full

Constipation

- Increase fibre gradually (veg, beans, oats)
- Drink more water; walk daily
- Ask your provider about a fibre supplement

Fatigue & hydration

- Sip water all day; electrolytes if active
- Don't skip protein
- Small balanced snacks keep energy steady

Heartburn / reflux

- Smaller portions; don't lie down after eating
- Limit spicy, acidic, fatty triggers

FAQ

Q: How much protein should I aim for?

A: It varies per person - many providers suggest ~20-30g per meal, or a daily target based on your body weight and goals. Ask your provider or dietitian for your number.

Q: I can barely finish a meal. What do I do?

A: Eat protein first, use smaller plates, and add a protein shake or Greek yogurt to top up if you fall short.

Q: Do I need supplements?

A: Not necessarily. Whole foods first; a simple whey or protein shake helps hit targets. Ask your provider before adding anything.

Q: Can I repeat the meal plan?

A: Yes - weeks 1-2 repeat for weeks 3-4, or mix your favourites. Consistency matters more than variety.

Q: Is this suitable for vegetarians?

A: Many meals are veg-friendly (tofu, eggs, dairy, beans). Swap meat for tofu/tempeh/extra beans.

Q: Will I lose muscle?

A: Prioritising protein + 2-3 strength sessions a week is the proven way to protect muscle while losing fat.
